DOES NOT WANT ARTICLES ON RASPUTIN SUPPRESSED

Russian Monk Seeks to Regain Possession of Copy From Metropolitan Magazine.

ASKS INJUNCTION OF COURT

Says Publication Is Denied Through Connivance With Petrograd Government—Claims Possession Because of Breach of Contract.

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, October 23.—Whether certain articles dealing with the alleged influence of Rasputin, the so-called "Russian mystic," over the Russian court, and written on by Illiodor, a Russian monk, and alleged to have been withheld from publication by the Metropolitan Magazine, may be published elsewhere, is the object of an injunction proceeding brought by Illiodor against the magazine in the Supreme Court here to-day.

The plaintiff asks that the magazine be "restrained from interfering with me in the publication of my articles," alleging that after the Metropolitan had agreed to publish them, for $5,000, "it seems now, with the connivance of the Petrograd government, the Metropolitan Magazine refused to publish these articles, and is willing to pay me to suppress them."

Illiodor, who says he arrived in the United States from Norway in June last, alleged that "suppression of this information at this time, when it may weaken or destroy the influence of Rasputin over the Russian government, the Metropolitan Magazine refused to publish these articles, and is willing to pay me to suppress them."

He alleges that when it became known that the articles were to be published, he was promised by the Russian consul-general here, Oustouf, and the Archbishop Evdokim $25,000, and a full pardon, "so that I could return to Russia, if I did not publish them," and that later on, "pretending to take up the negotiations," Oustouf paid him $1,000.

ALLIES NOT READY TO DISCUSS PEACE TERMS, SAYS GREY

pute must be referred to a conference or The Hague, that the Belgian treaty must be observed, there would have been no war.

CANNOT SPEND TIME THINKING ABOUT FUTURE

"Nations fighting for their existence, with daily increasing prospects of seeing victory brought nearer, still knowing that if they stop short of victory they stop short of everything for which they are struggling, cannot be expected to spend much time thinking about what might happen after victory is secured. But the neutrals can do it. I observe that not only President Wilson, but Mr. Hughes, is supporting a league started, not with the object of interfering with the belligerents in this war, but which will do its part in making peace secure in the future."

"It is a work of neutral countries to which we should all look with favor and hope. Only, we must bear this in mind: if the nations after the war are able to do something effective by binding themselves with the common object of preserving peace, they must be prepared to undertake not more than they are able to uphold by force, and to see, when the time of crisis comes, that it is upheld by force."

"The question we must ask them is, 'When you pay up when the time comes?' It is not merely the sign manual of Presidents and secretaries that is really to make that worth while. It must also have behind it Parliaments and national sentiments."

"Supposing the conditions of 1914 occur again and there is such a league in existence. Everything will depend upon whether national sentiment behind it is so permeated by the lessons of this war as to compel each nation, as a matter of vital interest, to keep peace other than by force."

MUST ARRIVE AT AGREEMENT REGARDING THE LAWS OF WAR

The Foreign Secretary insisted upon the necessity after the war of arriving at some agreement with respect to the laws of war, arguing that the mere indiscriminate employment of all the resources of science in the prospect which threatens civilization and the existence of the race itself. He characterized "the employment of poisonous gas and other horrors by Germany" as having "let loose on the world more terrible anarchy than any individual anarchist," and referred especially to the "organized attempt" to exterminate the Christians in Turkey, since Turkey became a vassal of Germany. Such horrors, he declared, were only possible with Germany's toleration.

PETERSBURG OUT FOR LAND BANK

SHOWS GREAT PROGRESS OF THE NEGRO RACE

Charles Graham, who has charge of the agricultural work at the Hampton Institute, another colored institution, explained the work that is being done among the colored farmers of the State. He had figures to show how many negroes owned their own farms and how many had mortgages. The negroes, he asserted, would be eager to co-operate in land bank associations, and he felt that they would be productive members. They can't get long-term loans, he explained, and consequently, are unable to make the strides which their industry warrants.

All of the speakers agreed that the interest rates in Virginia were too high, and that there was great difficulty in getting money on long-term loans. The greatest single thing, they agreed, was an opportunity to get money when it was needed without so much red tape and delay and at a reasonable cost. The farm loan act, it was asserted, will turn Virginia into a State with a lot of big, unproductive tracts of land to a State of small, highly productive farms.

Among those who testified yesterday were James H. Wood, H. C. Beattie, George W. Kainer, Commissioner of Agriculture; Colonel E. C. Massie, J. J. Egleston, president of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute; W. W. Baker, Westmoreland Davis, former president of the State Farmers' Institute; C. C. Barksdale, State bank examiner; Jesse E. Jones, A. W. Walsh, W. W. Barnes, Senator W. H. C. Jeffries, Charles T. Lassiter, president of the Petersburg Chamber of Commerce; Charles Hall Davis, of Petersburg, and many others, including J. F. Koler, who represented the Bohemian colonies of Dinwiddie and Chesterfield Counties.

That the farm loan banks are needed badly, and that Virginia is the right place for one of them, was fully agreed by all who testified. The need of a uniform land registration law was also strongly emphasized.

The board was entertained at luncheon by the agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce, of which Oliver J. Sands is chairman. Mr. Sands called upon Coleman Workman, president of the chamber, to act as toastmaster, and a number of short talks were made. Among those who spoke were Attorney-General John Garland Pollard, Mayor George Ainslie, Governor George J. Seay, of the Federal Reserve Bank; Mr. Von Engelken and Mr. Norris, of the visitors, and Mr. Brown, of Raleigh, who came here to meet the board, which will visit that city to-day.

The board left at midnight for Raleigh. A number of local men, including W. T. Dabney, business manager of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, accompanied the board.
